48040 (Yelverton MS. 45). PAPERS ON CANON LAW, etc.; 16th cent. Latin and French.

1. ff. 13-104b. 'Ecclesiastical lawes devised in kynge henry the viiis dayes' ('of Mr John Foxe' added by Beale to the title, f. 13): the collection of revised canons envisaged by the statutes 25 Hen. VIII c.19.2 (1534), 27 Hen. VIII c.15 (1536) and 35 Hen. VIII c.16 (1544), Statutes, iii, 460-461, 548-549 and 976, compiled probably by 27 Oct. 1535 but never given royal approval. See D. Logan, 'Henrician Canons', BIHR, xlvii, 1974, pp. 99-103. The collection was noticed by Foxe in his Reformatio Legum

Ecclesiasticarum, 1571, in which the prefatory draft letter of Henry VIII (ff. 15b-16) is printed. The present contemporary copy (which bears contemporary foliation 1-89 on the versos of ff. 14-192) is carefully written (conceivably for the King himself, see Logan, ibid., p. 102) in one legal hand throughout, with a few corrections (ff. 84, 84b, 86b, 87) in a different hand and ink, which may also have made the thin pen strokes at the end of each paragraph to mark its owner's progress through the text.

2. ff. 106-211. Extracts from conciliar decrees, etc.; late 16th cent. As follows: (a) Titles of early conciliar decrees (Antioch, Carthage, Chalcedon, Ephesus, Nicaea, etc.) arranged under headings. ff. 106-116b; (b) Titles of laws of the Theodosian code arranged under headings. ff. 119-125; (c) Numbered extracts from conciliar decrees and decretals, followed by an alphabetical index (ff. 201-205b) and an index by order of contents (ff. 207-211), both headed by Beale. There is a contemporary foliation, 1-63, on ff. 129-191. ff. 129-211.

3. ff. 213-274. Two Latin tracts by Pierre Alexandre, Professor of Theology at Heidelberg, Canon of Canterbury 1551, rector of All Hallows Lombard Street 1552 until his death in 1562. See F. de Schickler, Les Églises du Refuge en Angleterre, 1892, i, pp. 8-133 passim, iii, pp. 16, 63, 173, and E. Johnston, Actes du Consistoire de l'Église Française de Threadneedle St., Londres, i, (Huguenot Soc. of London, xxxviii), 1937, pp. xvi-xxv passim. Other tracts by Alexandre are Cambridge Corpus Christi Coll. MS. 115. As follows: (a) 'Tractatus perutilis et necessarius de vera Ecclesiae disciplina et Excommunicatione', read in Canterbury Cathedral; 1553. Beg. 'De excommunicatione et disciplina ecclesiastica tractaturi'. ff. 213-ff. 279-322. Papers relating to the French Protestant Church; 16th cent. French. As follows: (a) One hundred articles concerning church discipline taken from the acts of the Synods of the Reformed Churches, 1559-1563, see J. Aymon, Tous les Synodes Nationaux des Églises Reformées de France, 1710, pp. 1-57. ff. 279-285b; (b) 'Memoires dressees en l'assemblee des Ministres a Lyon', 10 Aug. 1563, with other synodal acts, see Aymon, pp. 36-48; followed (ff. 289-290b) by a letter from Calvin and the Church of Geneva on infant baptism, differing somewhat from the version in Aymon, pp. 53-57. ff. 286-290b; (c) Acts of the Synod of Paris; 25 Dec. 1565. Aymon, pp. 58-71. ff. 291-298; (d) 'La Discipline Ecclesiastique des Eglises reformees de France' enacted by the Synod of Paris, 1559, and revised by subsequent synods, 1560-1581, see Aymon, pp. 1-154 passim. Copies of the Discipline as revised by the Synod of St Maixent, 1609, are Add. MSS. 48062, art. 3 and 48118, art. 1. See M. G. Campbell, Discipline or Book of Order of the Reformed Churches of France, translated from the Orleans edition of 1675, 1924. ff. 299-322. 5. ff. 327-408. Notes by Beale on St Matthew's Gospel, i-xiii, mostly summarizing the contents, with some parallels. Latin. Autograph. Pagination 1-164, apparently by Beale. Paper; ff. 408. 17th-cent. foliation throughout, 390-399 lacking in the sequence. Artt. 1, 2(b) and 5 also have separate numberings, see above. Folio. XVI cent. Vellum binding with leather ties. Traces of a label on the front cover. Titled and numbered '45' on the spine, also, faintly, '39'.

Imperf.
23. Two fragments of the Life of a French Priest, whose opinions (as it seems) approached towards those of the Protestants. He lived A.D. 1500. 64.
24. An Imperfect Tract containing divers Letters of State, viz. Letter to Cardinal Wolsey, written from France by Dr Taylor Master of the Rolls Ambassador to the French King; & Stephen Gardiner & Edward Fox the Kings good disposition towards the Pope, & K Henry

- VIII and his resolution to take (by way of reprisal) as many Ships as he could from the Emperors subjects: delivering to the English what goods of theirs should be found therein. 68.
25. Letter of Stephen Gardiner, & Edward Fox to Cardinal Wolsey; shewing how well they had been entertained by Dr Taylor, & by Dr Clerke Deane of Welles. And desire father Instructions, in case the French Kings promyse to be made to the Pope, should be different from that which they were carrying from King Henry. 68. b.
26. Letter of same to King Henry VIII shewing the honourable entertainment they mett with at Genoa, & Lucca, in their way to the Pope. 70.
27. Letter of the same to Cardinal Wolsey; giving the reason why they had not as yet had an Audience of the Pope, though offered to them; and giving an honourable character & testimony of Mr Gregorye, i.e. Sir Gregory de Cassalis, to whom they were to discover the secrets of their Commission, and whom they think better able to serve his Majestie with the Pope, than any other person. 71.
28. Letter of the same to Cardinal Wolsey: giving a doleful account of their Arrival at Orvieto where the Pope resided, as in liberty, though his return to Rome was shut up by those of Viterbo, who took part with the Spaniards against him: They describe the dearth, & pestilence Air of that old & ruinous City. As also the ruinous Palace wherein the Pope & his few servants were lodged; affirming that the furniture of the Pope's Bedchamber there, bed & all, was not worth twenty nobles. 72.
29. Letter of the same to K. Henry VIII shewing that they would write a large account of their Proceedings with the Pope, in cyfre, to the Cardinal; that Dr Fox would soon return with his Dispatches (i.e. the Commission for trying the cause of Matrimony, between his Majestie & Q. Catherine) They much commend Sir Gregory de Cassalis his Majesties Orator to the Pope, & affirm that by his great credit with Pope & Cardinals, no man is so able to serve his Majestie there, as he. 73. b.
30. A long Letter, written to Cardinal Wolsey, by Sir Gregory de Cassalis, Dr Gardiner, & Dr Fox, the Kings Ambassadors to the Pope, at Orvieto. Shewing at length, all the Communication they had with his Holiness, & several Cardinals, at divers times. That the Pope & the said Cardinalls own the great obligations they have received from his Majesty, & particularly that of their liberty: but being yet in fear of the Emperor, and since the war of Naples between French & Spaniard is not brought to a conclusion, they make many difficulties of granting such a Commission for trying the Kings great Cause in England, as

- was now desired, upon pretence of its being contrary to the style now used in that Court. That the Pope being shewed the Book written by the King against the legality of his Marriage (inscribed to Cardinal Wolsey, and which had been communicated to the Bishops, who likewise had given their opinion of it) seemed resolved to read it over. That they had certified him, that the Queen had shewed her self content to stand to the Judgement of the Church in this important affair. That they have hope of getting a Commission, according to their Instructions for Redemption of the First Fruits, with which project the Pope seemed much pleased; as he did with the Cardinals & founding & building of Christ-church in Oxford, as to the state of which he made particular Inquiry. That they had procured his Holiness to shew his minde to the Cardinal Sanctorum Quatuor, for degradation of Priests, &c. 75.
31. Letter of Dr Stephen Gardiner & Sir Gregory de Cassalis to Cardinal Wolsey, shewing at length the Disputes they had with the Pope & Cardinals, concerning the special Commission for trying the King's marriage; which was at last utterly refused. How the Pope & the said Cardinals prevaricated about the general Commission, which when obtained at last, was not entirely according to their mind. That Gardiner would go to Rome to confer with the Cardinal Campegius, who was desired to be sent as Legate into England to try the Cause; and thinks that besides him, there is no other Cardinal meet to be sent. That as to the Canonization of K. Henry the Sixth, the Pope is willing to dispatch it with all speed, after that the Arch Bp. of Canterbury & Bishop of Winchester (Richard Foxe) who have examined the matter in partibus shall have sent the process thither, as their Commission required. That as to the Pardon to be granted to Windsor-College, they can do nothing at present, for want of the Name of that College, & how it is incorporate. That as to the Cardinals College of Christ-Church, the Pope will do all that can be reasonably desired. Dat. at Orvieto. 92. b.
32. Letter of the same to Cardinal Wolsey, concerning the streights the Pope finds himself in between the Emperor & the French King. That the French have not been so good as their word, in causing (by concert with the King of England) the Venetians to restore the Cities taken from his Holiness. And they would have him declare himself a member of the League against the Emperor, & to proceed forthwith to deprive him both of the Empire & of the Kingdom of Naples. Wherein, the Pope thinks many precautions ought to be used. That he throws himself upon King Henry's protection, and will send a Nuncio into England, as soon as he shall know who, or what sort of - person will be acceptable. 101.

33. Letter of Dr Edward Foxe, to Dr Stephen Gardiner, & Sir Gregory de Cassalis; shewing the audience he had of the King at his return, in Mrs Anne Boleyns chamber, & how much he & she were rejoiced at the good success in procuring the Commission and Dispensation from the Pope. That Cardinal Wolsey was the same. But still desired that they would sollicit the Pope for a Commission Decretal, in this Cause, which should not be seen but in case of necessity; to which sollicitations the King would have them add certain threatening expressions to the Pope, if they could not get it by fair words. The Cardinal directs Gardiner to consult the most learned men, & practised lawyers, upon certain points in this Cause, touching the methods which the Queen might, or would guide her self by; and as to the guiding of his own Conscience & Judgement. For though like a grateful man, he owned to his Majestie the great benefits he had received of him; yet he declared that he would rather incur his high Indignation, & lose his life than do any thing in this Cause otherwise than as Justice requireth. 103.
 34. Letter of Dr Edward Foxe to Dr Stephen Gardiner; shewing how hainously ill the King and Cardinal Wolsey take the Popes delays & tergiversations; especially his hindring Cardinal Campegius from coming to England; and that therefore he is ordered to procure that Cardinals journey hither, or not to return home himself, as he desired to do. 110. b.
 35. Part of certain short Annals, written by a Monk of St Augustin's in Canterbury; relating the transactions or remarkable occurrences; chiefly as to Ecclesiastical matters, from A.D. 1532 to A.D. 1538. 112.
 36. Archbishop Cranmers Judgement (or Opinion) concerning the admission of scholars into the Free-Schole belonging to the Cathedral Church of Canterbury (i.e. that the children of poor men, might be taken in, as well as those of the rich). 115.
